Prosperity Era For Point Loma

Investment of Millions In Development Work By New Realty Corporation

INVESTMENTS BY PANTAGES, MILLS, SHREVE & CO. OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED

Articles of incorporation have been filed in San Diego for a million dollar realty company, headed by Alexander Pantages, John P. Mills and Jesse H. Shreve, for the expressed purpose of developing Point Loma property. The three men who are the principal figures in the new realty organization are said to represent a capital of more than thirty million dollars and it is planned to spend at once some $2,000,000 in developing picturesque Point Loma as an ideal residential district.

The new company is officially recorded as Pantages, Mills, Shreve & Co. The first named of the group is Alexander Pantages, the famous theatrical magnate, whose personal fortune is said to run into eight figures. John P. Mills, another incorporator, is known as a successful real estate operator in Los Angeles. His selling organization claims a record in Los Angeles of selling out a subdivision totaling $1,200,000 retail value in one day. The third member and president of the syndicate is the widely and favorably known Jesse H. Shreve, who is vice-president of the Union National bank and actively connected with the Community Building and Loan association, Southwest Union Securities corporation, Exchange Securities corporation and other San Diego county enterprises. It is said to have been largely through his influence that Mr. Pantages and Mr. Mills became interested in the local field.

It is stated by Mr. Shreve that the new company is to act in the capacity of a holding corporation, while active selling operations will be conducted by the John P. Mills organization, under contract with the holding company. Mr. Shreve also states that the holding company has already commenced operations with the purchase of a fine tract of fifty-five acres on Point Loma between Chatsworth boulevard and Santa Barbara avenue, while the John P. Mills organization has already prepared for an immediate selling campaign:

President Jesse H. Shreve says:

"It is on Point Loma that the company will concentrate its activities for the present, and as a result of the development planned for that district Point Loma is destined to become one of the choicest and most beautiful residential sections to be found anywhere in the United States."

Both Mr. Mills and Mr. Pantages have made a thorough investigation of conditions here, and they declare that San Diego is ready for a rapid upward movement in real estate and that this city has in Point Loma a district of greater potentialities than any place on the Pacific coast.

VIKINGS TO CAVORT ON BAY AND SEASHORE AT MISSION BEACH

As a special attraction at the new Mission Beach Amusement Center next Sunday an aquatic program will be presented by the "Vikings" of the San Diego Rowing club. It will include water sports on Bonita bay in the morning and beach sports during the afternoon on the ocean front. The feature will be in charge of a committee co-operating with Wilbur Kyle, manager of the Mission Beach bathhouse.

NEW STUCCO COTTAGE

I. L. Hilliard took out a permit this week for a stucco cottage and garage, costing $3,000 at 4405 Long Branch avenue.

O. B. BASEBALL

PACIFIC RADIATORS BOOKED FOR NEXT SUNDAY AGAINST OCEAN BEACH

There promises to be a hot time on the local baseball diamond next Sunday afternoon when the Pacific Radiator team will cross bats with the Ocean Beach club. The game is scheduled to commence at 2:30 p. m.

BEACH BUNCH SLUG WAY TO VICTORY OVER CAMP HEARNE NINE

On the beach diamond last Sunday afternoon, the Ocean Beach nine whacked the hide off the ball in their contest with the nine from Camp Hearne. With Toomey in the box for the home bunch, only five scattered hits were obtained by the visitors, while the beachites chalked up nineteen. The latter found Kelly an easy mark at the opening of the session, and Fraser was put in to stem the tide of victory, but the beach bunch kept up the slugfest for a total of 18 runs to 3 for the cavalrymen from Camp Hearne. A total of half a dozen errors were evenly divided. The batteries: O. B.—Toomey and Pells; C. H.—Kelley, Fraser and Barnett.

"CHIP IN" FOR THE TEAM

Manager W. B. McBride of the O. B. baseball club, states that the team is badly in need of additional equipment, such as shoes, mitts and balls and bats. He earnestly requests all patrons of the games to "chip in" as liberally as possible when the collection hat is passed around. The support of the excellent aggregation depends almost entirely upon the generosity of the fans in attendance at the games and "any dodging of the collector only tends to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs," says Manager McBride. Backing the home team with a bountiful silver or long green contribution is the loyal duty of every lover of the popular national game.

AN APPEAL AND AN APPRECIATION

MISSION BEACH COMPANY

Mission Beach, Calif., August 5, 1925.

Mr. Kirk Smith,
Editor of "The Beach News."

Dear Kirk: As chairman of the membership committee of the Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce and desiring to make a drive for more members at the very small membership fee of $1.00 per year per family, would you please find space in your FASTEST GROWING BEST WEEKLY in San Diego, "The Beach News" to insert the following as MY SENTIMENTS:

IMPORTANCE OF PROSPERITY

There is positively nothing of more importance to any of us than the prosperity of our own community. So let's get together and work together to that end. The more prosperous the community is as a whole the more prosperous will be each individual. And the only way any community can be really prosperous is by a co-operation on the part of all in making it so. We can never expect to amount to much if we persist in the idea of "going it alone." So let's all work together for a better and bigger Mission Beach by each and every member, 200 strong so far, getting one more member each, between now and the next meeting August 18th.

One dollar bills can be mailed for memberships to "The Beach News"; to Postmaster, Mission Beach; to any of the Real Estate agents in M. B., or Box 99, M. B., and a membership card will be promptly mailed by return mail. Thanking you for your fine service to this community and splendid co-operation as a member, I am with kindest regards to Mrs. Smith and yourself,

Yours very truly,

HARRY K. TURNER,
Chairman Membership Committee,
Mission Beach Chamber of Commerce.

ATTENTION, PLEASE! ALL "BEACH" RESIDENTS!

I know we shall all be enthusiastically proud and glad of our wonderful "playground by the sea," if we will begin at home and beautify by cleanliness and neatness our own yard at least. Our neighbors should do likewise and then all together we keep our community as nature gave it to us—free from diseases and smells of careless humanity.

The unseemly carelessness of beach patrons (and owners also) as to garbage disposal has become a menace and an eyesore to others who want to live in cleanliness.

We all come to the seashore for health. But goodness knows the ocean's wonderful salt breezes will not keep diseases from our community if personal filth and rubbish are allowed to scatter to the four winds of Mission Beach as it has been doing for many months. The carelessness of one makes extra work and a nuisance for your neighbors. Your trash, if not properly cared for, blows over to your neighbor's yard. Germs and disease from one house are carried to the whole community.

Please keep your own germs at home—your neighbor does not want them.

Keep Mission Beach clean and beautiful. It is only kept so by the efforts of each and every individual here. Let every new guest and passer-by greet our new district with exclamations of pleasure at the sight of our trim, neat and clean playground.

Notice to All Mission Beach People

Garbage and trash should be kept in covered pails and covered barrels. It should be placed on highways only on collection days, which are Tuesday and Friday mornings at an early hour. Then see that all empties are cleared away again at once.

Please note and help make Mission Beach attractive to our guests.

Mae Allen Gibson, prominent realty broker of Mission Beach, entertained guests at her home, 3846 Bayside walk, last Tuesday. A swimming party before a most interesting 6 o'clock dinner was enjoyed immensely, inasmuch as all service was in vegetable form and all grown in the gardens of Mission Beach. The evening was spent in playing cards.

Mr. and Mrs. Max and Heinie Rabinovitch and families are now located for the summer in their duplex home on the corner of Ormond court and Ocean board walk.

Many beautiful new homes of permanent, high-class structure are being built throughout the peninsula; also the best class of apartment, flat and store buildings.

Mission Beach is developing fast and many are trying to improve their property for the joy of all.

The San Diego Electric Co. has workmen on the job placing new poles on the alleyways for better service in electricsupply. Now the next step is for our city manager, Mr. Rhodes, to "O. K." our street lighting system. Let us hope he will get things started for us and please the people here by his speedy action in the matter.

Mrs. H. Weiss and two sons, of Akron, Ohio, have leased the "Grey Goose" on Redondo court. She contemplates making her home here and expects Mr. Weiss out from the east in the spring.

"Carbis & Kinnings" of 3760 Mission boulevard are building up a better business through the courtesy extended to their patrons.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Jones are entertaining a guest from Los Angeles.

Ben Owen, wife and children, Jane and Davis, from Miami, Arizona, are here for ten days enjoying the cool beach.

Forest Gibbons of San Francisco has been here visiting Mission Beach and is planning to return and locate here.

A. B. Carter, contractor, is building a fine brick and tile apartment house on San Juan place. The South Coast Lumber company here is furnishing the lumber needed.

We hear the contractors are making splendid progress on our fine, new school building. Let us hope to see it awaiting a ready crowd of school children that contemplate living here the year 'round.

GOING DEEPER FOR LIQUID GOLD

DRILLING FOR OIL TO BE RESUMED SOON IN BEACH DISTRICT

It is reported on excellent authority that arrangements are being made by the Mission Bay Oil company for the resumption of drilling operations at their well on the bay flats. From those who are in a position to know, it is learned that the finances of the company have been placed on a satisfactory basis to all concerned and some extra capital has been obtained. The well has been successfully driven several hundred feet with very promising results, and it is planned to keep a-drilling for the liquid gold. If the well ever spouts—then, siss! boom!! ah!!

Building Activities

ONE DAY'S PERMITS TOTAL $58,000 FOR ELEVEN STUCCO COTTAGES

A very significant indication of the march of progress in the Point Loma section is shown in the record of permits for July. On the last day of the month permits were taken out for $58,000 in building construction on Point Loma Heights, in the name of N. W. Herriman, and also the same per Mosher & Herriman. The permits call for eight $5000 stucco cottages and garages and three $6000 stucco cottages and garages on Chatsworth boulevard, Wawona drive, Poe street, Centraloma drive, Bernice drive and Atascadero drive. The lots are all located on Point Loma Heights in blocks B, C, D, F and G.

Other permits for July in the O. B. district totaled nearly $20,000 and included construction work for J. T. Smith, W. H. Klucker, W. H. Jennings, B. Clugston, S. M. Douglass, O. O. Henn, George Finley, F. R. Eaton, R. McLachlan, O. P. Fletcher, O. B. Waters, T. J. Haffey, Mrs. Horace Jackson, Jean Rittenhouse, M. A. Charles, E. C. Rollins, T. Michels and V. W. Harris.

INTERIOR WORK ON NEW STRAND THEATRE WILL BE RUSHED

Owner-Manager Ray Ericsson states that interior work and furnishings on the new Strand theatre will be rushed in order to arrange for the opening of the house for the regular fall and winter season. Contractor J. B. Manseau has an extra force of finishers on the job and is arranging to complete the splendid structure during the current month. The new movie house promises to be a most decided ornament to Newport avenue.

DEVELOPMENT WORK AT SUNSET CLIFFS

It is announced that the proposed development of the Sunset Cliffs section will be resumed and that the work will be speedily pushed according to the original plans for improvement.

NEW SEASIDE HOTEL

It is proposed by an eastern syndicate to build a large and costly tourist hotel on the site to be graded in the Sunset Cliffs section, where the preparatory work will be rushed toward making it an exclusive residential district

HEARTY WELCOME!

EAST SAN DIEGANS PLAN COMMUNITY OUTING AT OCEAN BEACH

At a recent meeting of the Civic League of East San Diego, plans were formulated toward holding a big community outing next Sunday at Ocean Beach. Those who may participate in the big picnic are assured of a most joyous welcome by beach folks, while extra efforts will be made toward furnishing a rousing round of amusements for the visitors throughout the day and evening. Come, all ye good folks! Let fun and frolic be unconfined. The keys to this glorious resort are yours and welcome, thrice welcome!

'Sweet' Time Coming At M. B. Roller Rink

FREE CANDY FOR LADIES AND GIRLS ON NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Manager "Ed." Kickham announces free candy gifts for all ladies and girls in attendance at his new Mission Beach Roller Rink next Friday night, Aug. 14.

The male gender will not be overlooked, but the men and boys will have to trust to their good luck for their particular share. They will be given a chance to win their portion and ought to carry off some mighty choice prizes—for their sweethearts, daughters and wives.

At any rate, it promises to be a very "sweet" night and there'll be lots of fun and frolic thrown in for good measure.

SAN DIEGO ORPHANS GRANTED FREEDOM OF RINK AT MISSION BEACH

Next Monday the San Diego Lodge of Elks, No. 168, will play host to the hundreds of orphans in San Diego. The day will be spent in recreation and amusement at Mission Beach. Manager "Ed." Kickham, who is a life member of the Elks, states that the young folks can make his new roller rink their headquarters during the day. In other words, the joy and freedom of his skating palace belongs to the orphans all next Monday.

NIGHT BUS SERVICE TO BE DISCONTINUED

Upon recommendation of City Manager Fred Rhodes the city council has granted the application of the San Diego Electric Railway company to modify its bus service at Ocean Beach. Under the new plan, the busses will be run from 6:40 o'clock in the morning to 6:40 in the evening, but the night service will be eliminated.

TURNER B. KLINE SAYS SMALL CARS GAIN IN POPULARITY

"Parking and traffic problems have caused the small car to gain in popularity during the past few years and manufacturers have responded with a score of light machines with short wheelbases at very moderate prices," says Turner B. Kline of the Sunset Garage, on Bacon street, Ocean Beach.

"The advent of the moderate priced car has brought out many moderate priced accessories and a desire for less expensive equipment. Batteries for this type of car have been developed along with special tires at reasonable cost," he asserts, "causing a decided increase in sales of new stock."

HOUSEKEEPING

Allie Baa is a rag doll and many of you have heard of her. She belongs to a little girl named Margaret, who calls herself Mrs. Cucumber Green when she plays. When Margaret tidies up her doll's house she calls herself Jane Eckler, the housecleaning lady.

Not a Fussy

Mrs. Cucumber Green has a place for play at the side of her bed. There is a big space between that and the wall. This space she calls Number Four, Green Lane.

Mrs. Cucumber Green had just brought her children back from grandma's chair, for they had been calling on grandma while Mrs. Cucumber Green did her housecleaning.

"They were just as good as gold," said grandma. "Really, Mrs. Cucumber Green, you should be very proud of your children."

Mrs. Cucumber Green gave a modest little smile.

"On the whole, they are pretty good," she said.

After the children were back in Four Green Lane, Mrs. Cucumber Green had lessons.

They only had a few lessons and they did them quickly, for, as Mrs. Cucumber Green said, the little dears were so bright they didn't have to study very hard.

Besides Mrs. Cucumber Green was not a fussy teacher. If they spelt words wrong she didn't mind. It was so very hard to spell words right.

And if they got mixed up in their alphabet Mrs. Cucumber Green never scolded.

It was almost impossible to get the alphabet entirely right..

They were pretty good in the poetry class, though. They remembered the verses Mrs. Cucumber Green taught them, and they loved the singing class!

That was always the last class of all.

Then Mrs. Cucumber Green took them shopping up the Lane, and talked with Mr. Ottaway, the grocer.

"Good morning, Mr. Ottaway," Mrs. Cucumber Green said, "have you some fresh eggs this morning?"

Mr. Ottaway was made of wood and he stood in a "pretend" grocery store, looking over his vegetables and eggs and fruits.

"Good morning, Mrs. Cucumber Green; yes, I've some delicious fresh eggs. Will bring color into the cheeks of your little ones."

"I'll have four dozen, then," said Mrs. Cucumber Green, and put them, in a "pretend" manner, in her basket.

Then she stopped at Mr. Gerken's, the butcher. Mr. Gerken was made of wood, too, and he had a fine black beard painted upon his bright wooden face.

"How about a good leg of lamb this morning?" asked Mrs. Cucumber Green.

Mr. Gerken stood in his "pretend" butcher shop and looked over the make-believe cuts of meat.

"Yes, ma'am," he said, in a deep fine voice, "I've a good cut for you. It's a good, generous cut. I'm one for fair measures. And you can use the bones after for soup. A good soup makes healthy children, I say."

"I agree with you, too," said Mrs. Cucumber Green, and put the lamb in her basket. The lamb was attached to a toy plate and that had to be put into the basket, too.

Later, of course, the lamb would be returned to Mr. Gerken's shop, but for a "pretend" meal it was the very thing.

Then Mrs. Cucumber Green went down the Lane to her home at Number Four, and there she set to work to get the dinner, while Allie, taking hold of her hand, and with only a very little help set the table.

The children had good appetites.

Johnny Naples was actually growing fat! Indeed, he was almost too fat. She would have to get him a new suit if he kept on growing like this. Oh, children were dreadful the way they grew! Mrs. Cucumber Green knew that. She was really quite tired when the day was over. She had had a very busy day. But then it kept one busy to keep house and look after the children and do the marketing. But it was so lovely to be busy, even house cleaning was fun.

"I Agree With You, Too."

"Isn't it lovely to be busy, Allie?" Mrs. Cucumber Green asked her beloved rag child, and from the way Allie looked at her, Mrs. Cucumber Green just knew that Allie thought the same!

Community Building

Entrances Into Town Should Be Attractive

It is a fact that there is no lack of beauty along the railroad lines in England, France, Germany and other places. Liberal planting of grass and shrubs, either by the railroad or the various muncipalities, has transformed these railroad lines into lanes of beauty.

The aim of American civic authorities should be to make the railed highways of the country as attractive as any of those in the old countries. Particular attention will be given to the approaches to towns. The idea is spreading rapidly. The American Railways Development association has passed resolutions recently to further the aims of the real estate men by co-operating with them in this important work.

Committees have been organized in New Orleans, Milwaukee, Duluth, Atlanta; Erie and Lancaster, Pa.; South Bend, Dayton, Des Moines; Trenton, N. J.; Providence, R. I.; Lockport, N. Y.; Dade City, Fla.; Warren, Ohio; Mishawaka, Ind.; Kankakee, Ill.; Madison, Wis.; Little Rock, Ark.; Arkansas City; Ogden, Utah; Casper, Wyo.; Albany, Ore., and Pasadena, Venice and Riverside, Cal.

They will urge upon the manufacturer located along the railroads the advantages to him, his business and the town of keeping his factory yard as clean and attractive as it is economically possible.

The plan calls for new station signs prominently placed. Besides the name of the town, it will give the total population, real estate and business wealth, and the town's chief industry.

Painters Have Much to Do With City's Safety

The house painter is as vital a member of a city's public safety forces as the fireman according to J. P. Rising, president of the Illinois Master House Painters' and Decorators' association.

"His position is unofficial," he said, "but he protects the citizens from destruction more devastating than fire and from losses far greater than they might suffer at the hands of the most unscrupulous burglar."

The painter, according to Mr. Rising, saves life and property by means of his commodity, paint. Rot and rust attack unprotected surfaces. Disease germs flourish in the decaying parts of wood and on all rough, damp surfaces. Rot and rust are more insidious than fire, but their action, an oxidation of wood and metal, is a "slow-motion picture," as Mr. Rising termed it, of the more spectacular flames.

"The difference is," he added, "that whereas fires are occasional occurrences, rot and rust are at work continually. A house must be always protected against them."

Home and City Synonymous

Home is more than the house, it is more than the grounds. It is deeper than any designation of physical boundary and more rich than anything made with hands. It is the dwelling place of the spirit—if the liberal thinkers will admit that each of us has such a thing—as well as of the body, which they seem to admit that we do possess. The house is the center of home, but it is no distortion of the truth to say that the city of one's abiding place is his home also. It is the wider home, but it is his. As a man labors to provide for his house, as a woman gives of the best of her strength and forethought to make goodly the house that is her own, so ought they both, proportionately, to do their best to make their larger home, which is their city, a prosperous place. —Connersville (Ind.) News.

Garden Adornment

Garden architecture must echo and reflect and be consistent with the architecture of the house itself. Pergolas of classic design cannot unbend to a rambling, careless little bungalow, nor can a rustic pergola rise to the dignity of a Georgian mansion. Naturally, if there is architectural adornment in the garden, it should be interrelated with that of the house. The use of a pergola is to support vines and to provide a pleasant, shady walk. But there is no reason for its existence if there is no vine for it to support, no destination to lead to.—The Designer Magazine.

Within Reach of All

A little town can't attract much favorable attention with posters and painted signs, but it can be talked about throughout the country, if it has ten acres of flower gardens along its streets. And that's something that's within the reach of the little town.

Find Beauty at Home

It is characteristic of human nature that it is seldom impressed by the accustomed view. The average man or woman wishing to observe beauty thinks it necessary to seek it afar. That distance lends enchantment and the grass is always greener on the other side of the street are old expressions of that universal illusion. Yet many a man has journeyed around the world on this quest, only to find that, after all, the supreme beauty lies at home.

WHISTLES HIS WAY TO FAKE MONEY PLANT

Federal Agent's Ear for Music Leads to Capture of Counterfeiters.

New York.—A federal agent's ear for music was credited by his superiors for their success in trailing and arresting a man and a woman charged with making counterfeit ten-dollar and five-dollar notes. The agent, according to Joseph A. Palma, chief agent in charge of the counterfeit squad of the Treasury department, picked up snatches of a Russian folk-song whistled by the man when he was admitted by the woman to the alleged counterfeiting den. The agent whistled the tune so skillfully that it gained him admittance and made possible the arrests.

The defendants described themselves as Joseph Radchis, twenty-seven years old, and Anna Simon, twenty-eight years old, both of Brooklyn. The woman said that she was engaged in welfare work with an organization which she refused to name. She explained that her work was among the thousands of Russian refugees who have arrived in the United States in recent years.

Perfect Reproductions.

The $5 and $10 notes were counterfeits of the Chase National bank, the Federal Reserve bank and the Chelsea

Whistling the Song and Giving the Proper Rap on the Door.

National bank, according to Mr. Palma, who described them as the most perfect reproductions he had seen in all his experience with counterfeiters. In Radchis' apartment the agents confiscated some counterfeit plates and a large quantity of silk fiber paper, apparently the same as used by the United States government in making genuine bank notes.

The search for counterfeiters and their plant began several months ago, according to Mr. Palma, after some of the spurious notes were placed in circulation in Newark. Storekeepers in Newark first complained of being victimized, and then came complaints from storekeepers in Brooklyn. The investigation led to Radchis and it was learned that he went every day to the two-room second-floor apartment occupied by the woman.

Following Radchis closely, an agent heard him whistle a Russian folksong as he entered the building, passed through the hallway and up the stairs to the woman's apartment. Still whistling the folksong, Radchis was admitted after he had rapped in a certain manner on the door, Mr. Palma said. The agent, whose identity was not disclosed by Mr. Palma, went to the woman's apartment at five o'clock in the afternoon, the hour when it was customary for Radchis to go there, and, whistling the song he had heard and giving the proper rap on the door, he was admitted. Another agent followed him.

Found Complete Plant.

According to Mr. Palma, the woman tried to shut the door when she saw a stranger there, but the agent was too quick for her. In the apartment, according to Mr. Palma, the agents found a complete counterfeiting plant, including photographic outfit, dyes, chemicals and other materials used in reproducing spurious bank notes.

Mr. Palma said that the man and woman told him they both came from Lithuania and that Radchis said he had frequented the New York library where he obtained technique books which he studied to improve his technique as a photo engraver. Radchis, he said, told him he was a graduate of Dorgoil college in Russia.

Man Saves Dog in Creek; Barks Then Save Rescuer

Bloomsburg, Pa.—A dog whose life he saved was, in turn, responsible for saving the life of A. W. Shuman, a local business man, when he fell into a creek dam near here.

Shuman rescued the dog when the current swept both from the breast of the dam and placed it on a log. Then he seized the log and held fast for an hour until the dog's frantic barking summoned aid.

Shuman was nearly dead from exhaustion at the time.

The log was at the mouth of a chute, in which Shuman's body would have been caught had he let go.

Icebergs on Lake in Glacier National Park

Icebergs are usually thought of only in connection with the sea, but there are a few places where glaciers have their outlet on bodies of fresh water and where masses of ice float about on lakes, writes T. A. Church in St. Nicholas. One of these is in Glacier National park, in Montana, and visitors pronounce it one of the most spectacular features of this scenic wonderland.

Iceberg lake, as this body of water is most appropriately called, is about seven miles from the famous Many Glacier hotel, and lies in an amphitheater formed by the precipitous Cathedral wall and Mount Wilbur. Between the lake and the cliffs is a glacier, fronting on the water, and large blocks of ice break from its face, so that there are icebergs in the lake, in mudsummer.

The snow for the formation of the glacier blows over the walls of the amphitheater, and collects in the basin in huge drifts. These, thawing and freezing, result in ice. The outlet of the lake is too shallow to allow the icebergs to pass out, so they melt there, with the result that the water has, even in summer, a temperature of only 39 degrees Fahrenheit. Despite the coldness of the water, many visitors swim in it and are photographed scampering about on the ice floes.

Near Iceberg lake is Gunsight lake and Gunsight pass, the latter being one of the most famous passes over the Continental Divide. Glaciers are on every hand, and dozens of streams tumble into the picturesque lake. At one time a fine chalet was located on the shore, but it was swept away by an avalanche. Ice may occasionally be seen floating on Gunsight lake, but most of the glaciers which feed the lake are high above the water. The Blackfoot glacier, two miles distant, is the largest in the park, covering an area of ten square miles.

How Sargent "Got" Them

Only a fortnight ago Mr. Ernest Ipsen, a distinguished portrait painter himself, in talking of the character displayed or concealed in the faces of sitters, told me a story of Sargent. It seems that in painting Wertheimer, the artist was watching eagerly for the psychological moment. "Finally," said he, "I deliberately asked him a question about an interesting investment—then I got him." But indeed he nearly always got them; the strong set face of a soldier like General Wood, the lady whose gowns were more important than herself, and the lady whose face in its character would make you forget any gown, the wind and sea tan on the skin of an admiral, or the soft texture of the complexion of a little Beatrice Goelet, the person who was bursting with health and the one who would soon see the doctor.

Yes, he got them.—Edwin H. Blashfield, in the North American Review.

Private O'Leary, V. C.

Michael O'Leary, one of the first men to win the Victoria cross in the war and now a resident of Canada, has been released from custody by United States immigration officials; he has been cleared of the charge of trying to smuggle aliens into this country. Michael won the cross in the early fighting in the Ypres sector. Alone, he advanced up to an enemy machine gun nest and killed half the crew, compelling the other half to surrender and bring their guns along with them. Michael was brought to London to be decorated by the king. Admiral Lord Fisher, that hard-bitten old sea dog, was standing about at the time of the ceremony and remarked: "Mr. O'Leary, you're a d—d good fighter, I wish to God I had you in the navy!"—Pierre Van Paassen in Atlanta Constitution.

Plaster of Paris Houses

Gypsum, commonly called "plaster of paris," which has been used for centuries for plastering walls, is the essential part of a new fireproof building material. Mixed with cinders, gravel, crushed stone or furnace slag, and poured in forms, it can be used in the construction of one and two-story houses at a cost that compares favorably with that of wooden buildings, says Popular Science Monthly. In a recent laboratory test the outside of a six-inch gypsum concrete wall was subjected to a temperature of 1,700 degrees for an hour, and at no time did the interior surface become warm.

Began "Digging" In

During their advance to the Marne, the Germans left sappers behind them to intrench a position on the Aisne to which they could return if necessary. After their retreat from the Marne, following the first phase of the Battle of the Aisne, September 18, 1914, they took up their position behind the trenches and the trench warfare, which featured the World war, began.

Torch Fights Fires

A new apparatus for fighting forest fires consists of a kerosene blow-torch, useful for setting backfires, says the Popular Science Monthly. By its use all the firing, it is claimed, can be done by one experienced man, thus reducing the attendant danger to a minimum.

FAT FEE ALMOST LOST TO LAWYER

But He Recovered Himself in Nick of Time.

In a Missouri town there resided a lawyer who had become rather successful in getting people out of trouble, H. K. Ford tells us in the Docket. Most of his clients were white people, and those who were in good circumstances would be charged "all the traffic would bear." But occasionally an impecunious white person or darky, whose feet had become entangled in the meshes of the dragnet of the law, would call on him and seek his professional services in getting the aforesaid feet extricated from their inhospitable surroundings. From these people he sometimes received very small fees; but he went on the theory that "half a loaf is better than no bread at all," so he accepted their business, and collected what he could from them.

One day an elderly negro, plainly clad and humble looking, entered his office. The lawyer told him to be seated, and inquired:

"What can I do for you?"

The old darky said:

"Boss, dey's got my boy in jail. Whut will you charge to get him out?"

The lawyer, sizing up his prospective client as one who was not very prosperous, replied:

"Oh, ten dollars."

Thereupon the negro, who had been away from the community for some time, and who had, without the home people knowing anything about it, accumulated a little money, pulled out a large roll of bills and commenced turning them over, presumably in an effort to find one of as small denomination as the fee demanded.

The lawyer saw the bills, and hastily said:

"What jail is it where they have your boy?"

"Why, boss, it's de county jail, dey calls it, up heah on de hill."

"Do you mean he is in the big stone jail up there, with steel bars on all the windows?"

"Yas, suh; yas, suh; dat's de place, boss."

"Oh, well when I answered your first question, I thought you meant they had him in the little wooden building down here that they use as a holdover. If he's in the stone jail, with the barred windows, it will cost $250 to get him out of that."

The old darky slowly counted out the required amount, the while muttering:

"Dat pestiffous boy cain't be satisfied wid no little wooden jail; seems lak he allus picks out dem 'spensive places."

Imagine

The statistician of a large manufacturing plant states that the time may come when historians will look back on our mechanical age as a curious freak, for, he says: "Merchandising our processes undoubtedly lowers the intelligence of all who have to do with production except the experts who make the machines. It also makes possible the rapid depletion of natural resources. We are now going a mile deep for copper here in Michigan, where we used to get it from the surface. Just what our mechanical age will do to the human race is a nice problem. Among other things, the ease with which we get great quantities of natural resources converted into usable supplies appears to make possible the rapid increase of the population of the earth to a point where we seem to be reaching a state of over-crowding."

Royalty Taken Seriously

Imperial portraits are serious matters in Japan, though the incidents in connection with a certain set cannot appear other than comic to the outside world. Eight years ago copies of the portraits of the royal family disappeared from a schoolhouse near Osaka. The authorities immediately prohibited the press from mentioning the fact. Though the mystery has never been solved, the government, doubtless feeling that the danger to the public weal lurking in the episode has died with time, has lifted the censorship, and the Japanese press may now publish the fact that the portraits have disappeared.

Her Choice of Suitors

"What a lucky girl you are, Daphne, to be able to choose between two such handsome and stylish young men! Have you made up your mind which is to be your husband?"

"To tell you the truth, I'm in a bit of a fix. If I decide to wear my cream-colored dress at the wedding, I shall take Alphonse, as he is dark-complexioned, you know; but if I decide to go in my blue dress, I rather think fair Algy will make the better match of the two."

Judge With a Heart

Here's a judge with a heart. A small boy was arrested for playing hookey from school on circus day. "I just wanted to see the parade," said the boy. "Sure, you did, and there's no law against skipping school on circus day," said the judge.

Argentine Government Oil

Oil exploration in Argentina has made such progress that the government is to build an oil refinery. Returns from sales of petroleum in 1924 amounted to $1,733,000.

Good Selectivity in This Hook-Up

Set Has Satisfactory Volume on Loud Speaker Up to 1,000 Miles.

I am showing a wiring diagram of a particularly selective set, writes a Minneapolis correspondent in Radio Digest, that I have had very good luck with. The following facts are just as I found them. While WCCO and WAMD were transmitting and the latter station is just 100 yards away I received WHT, Chicago; WQJ, Chicago; WTAY, Oak Park; WDAF, Kansas City; WOAW, Omaha, and KYW, on a loud speaker, using just three tubes. I had absolutely no interference from either of the local stations and I assure that they are notable when it comes to "stepping on the loud pedal." $C_3$ is the trap arrangement which cut out much local QRM.

The adjustment of $L_4$ is very critical. $L_3$ and $C_1$ log practically the same in picking up a station. If $L_4$ is advanced too far signals will be blocked. The constants are shown in the diagram. The set has real good volume on loud speaker up to 1,000 miles. I do not know what it will do on the phones as I never use them.

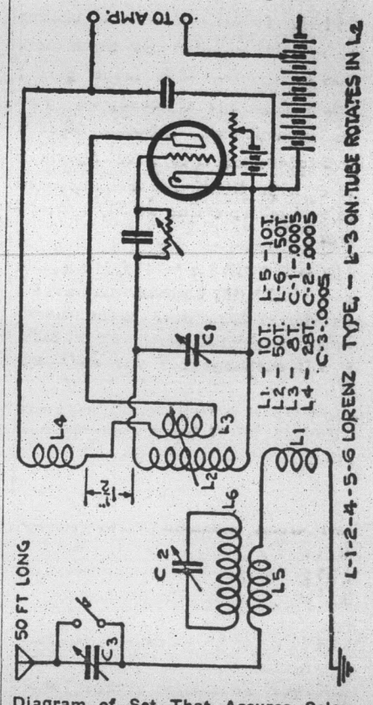

Diagram of Set That Assures Selectivity.

When Socket Spring Breaks in Your Set

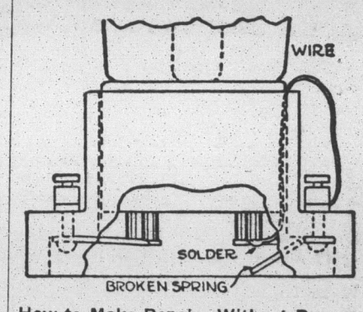
When bending up springs of a socket while in the set a spring often breaks. In some sets to remove the socket is very difficult, but a repair may be made without removal.



How to Make Repairs Without Removing Socket.

Determine which tip of the tube should make the contact and solder a small insulated wire to it, replace the tube and connect the other end of the wire to the correct binding post on the socket. This will make a permanent repair.—Radio Digest.

Finds New Substance to Replace Galena Crystal

Parisian radio fans are hopeful that a new substance to replace the galena crystal will prove to be the dreamed-of super-crystal, and not just another substitute. The substance was discovered by Felix Thuaud, a prominent French steel manufacturer. While studying the by-products of steel, Thuaud noticed a material that was somewhat like the crystal used in radio sets. He chipped off a few pieces and had radio fans try them. Their report was that concerts were heard over longer distances and with greater clearness than with galena points. Thuaud also found that it was not necessary to hunt for special points of contact, as the new material was adequately sensitive at any point.

The basis of the material is a combination of silicon and iron, with the former dominant. The product can be made in an electrical furnace or in an ordinary crucible. It can be sold at about one-fourth the price of substances now used.

RADIO WAVES

Simple, tight mechanical connections are better than poorly soldered ones.

Try a fixed condenser between the aerial and ground for the longer wave lengths.

A 22½-volt "B" battery should be discarded when it has dropped to 17 volts, and a 45-volt "B" battery after it has fallen below 34 volts.

LOOKING AT BOTH SIDES

When the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers went into the banking business about five years ago, it was regarded by many bankers as an experiment in socialism.

The Brotherhood now controls banks in ten cities, with $48,600,000 resources and six investment corporations with $17,000,000 paid in capital.

Instead of rapidly expanding the number of banks, it is the policy of the Brotherhood to build up those already controlled.

Experience has made the members highly conservative. In their combined capacities of workers and bankers, owning in many cases the securities of the corporations whose trains they run, the Brotherhood members have had a good look at both sides of the labor and capital question.

Health and Home

CAMPING AND PROBLEM OF FOOD

There is no healthier sport than camping. During the warm and balmy spring and summer days, it is real recreation. To get out in the fresh air and sunshine, free from worry and care, enhances the health of anyone, be he office man, salesman or what not.

But due to the entirely inadequate means of food preservation and refrigeration found in the majority of camps, there is the ever-present danger of sickness from infected foods. The utmost care must be taken in order that this may be avoided. Butter and eggs should be bought only as used. The milk is a problem in itself. Perhaps the solution lies in the use of a milk other than market milk, in order that purity and sterility may be assured. For such use, evaporated milk is ideal. Many people are wont to confuse evaporated and condensed milk but there is no similarity between the two. Condensed milk is a combination of sugar and milk and can be used only when both of these substances are desired. Evaporated milk is merely pure, fresh milk with about sixty per cent of the water removed and the nutrient content left intact. It is absolutely sterile and pure, having been sterilized before leaving the factory. The water, removed by evaporation, may be replaced very easily and the milk returned to its original volume. Evaporated milk may be obtained in small cans, containing six ounces or in larger ones containing sixteen and can be taken to the camp in quantities sufficient for the needs of the entire period, thus assuring a constant supply of pure, fresh milk without the worry or the danger attached to the use of the market product.

Following are recipes for a few dishes that are best adapted for camp consumption because of ease of preparation, purity and food value.

Tomato Soup.

1 pint tomato pulp or canned tomato soup
1½ cups evaporated milk
1½ cups water
Salt and pepper to taste
⅛ tsp. soda

Bring tomato pulp or soup to the boil, add the seasonings and soda. Heat the milk and water and combine slowly with the tomato mixture.

Shirred Eggs.

⅛ cup evaporated milk
⅓ cup water
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. paprika
6 eggs
2 tbsp. fat
Grated cheese

Beat the eggs, add the milk, water and seasonings. Melt the fat in a frying pan. Add the egg mixture and stir until the mixture is creamy. When almost done, sprinkle with grated cheese. Serve on slices of bread, toast or crackers.

Trainer of Boxers Gives Diet Hints

Sammy Mandell.

To Kid Howard of Chicago and his new system of training and conditioning, Sammy Mandell, the present lightweight boxing champion of the world, gives a great deal of the credit for his meteoric rise to stardom in the world of pugilism. When Mandell first started fighting, he was small, weak and undeveloped, but after turning himself over to Howard it was only a short time before he took the decision from Sid Terris of New York that resulted in him being recognized as the boss of the lightweights. Howard's system is unique in that it works no hardship on the athlete who is in training. Unlike the systems that have been used for years, this prominent and successful trainer of men makes conditioning more of a pleasure than a distasteful necessity. Instead of demanding that his men eat only certain things he advises them to eat what they want and when they want it as long as it is cooked in a proper manner. Mr. Howard, in a recent interview on the subject of diet and condition, said, in part: "Years ago it was a task, and an unpleasant one, for a boxer or a wrestler to train for a bout because he was forced to literally starve himself unless he wanted to eat steaks and chops at all times. I remember that when I was training for a match, I was so truly tired of steaks that I choked every time that I ate one but it was steak or nothing. I advise my men to diet at all times but it is perfectly possible for them to diet and, at the same time, to enjoy their food. My only 'don't' is the one regarding the eating of such combinations as fresh milk and cheese, and fruit with cream. In fact, I advocate the use of evaporated milk entirely. Vegetables are fine and the more that the athlete eats the better he will be for it. Pastry, of certain kinds, such as homemade pies, cakes and cookies, if made correctly, and with pure butter, evaporated milk and pure lard, are very beneficial. Stews and boils are ideal. Taken as a whole, any food, with a few exceptions, is all right if properly cooked and eaten without gorging."

And one has but to look at Howard, who is the most religious user of his own system, to realize that it is a success.

MISS ADELINE WHALING FINISHES IN FIRST DIVISION OF SWIMMING CONTEST

Among a total of eighty-seven girls who finished in the sixth annual Silver Gate Channel Swim last Sunday, Miss Adeline Whaling of Cape May avenue, was the twelfth contestant to cross the line of victory. Miss Whaling is a popular Ocean Beach girl and a very capable swimmer. She reached the finish float in fine style despite much confusion that prevailed at the end of the channel contest.

MILLIONS CARRIED WITHOUT INJURY

SAFETY REGULATIONS REGARDING SMALL CHILDREN ON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Manager O. F. Davis issues a word of explanation about the free riding of small children and persons accompanying them on the O. B. Merry-Go-Round. He says: "We feel that we have been somewhat imposed upon by different parties who would allow their larger children to stand beside the smaller ones as though taking care of same and of course ride free; but these larger children as soon as the collector passed, would leave the smaller children to care for themselves and move elsewhere on the machine, mostly to the outer edge to catch the rings. Now any child of three years or older can ride any of our machines in perfect safety without an attendant, as we have straps to every animal to fasten them on and the operator will gladly do this at all times if the parent so desires, and will call his attention to same. However, we are perfectly willing to allow any mother to accompany her small children at any and all times, free of charge if she so desires, and would very much prefer having her do so, as that relieves the operator of quite a bit of time looking after them. We are determined to break up this habit of allowing larger children standing beside smaller ones, simply to get a free ride. We have always tried to be fair to our patrons and believe we can safely claim to be among the most careful merry-go-round operators of California. We have been in the business now for over twenty-five years. Have had from one to three hundred machines in operation at all times and have never had an accident, whereby there was never a bone broken for anyone, large or small. This we claim as a remarkable record, as we have carried millions of people of all ages."

FACTORY EMPLOYES AS WELL AS EQUIPMENT ALL ON ROLLERS

From the "Factory," published in New York, it is quoted that rollers for both men and equipment are lightening the work of the modern industrial plant. Light machines, caster-mounted and motor-driven, are wheeled to the point where they are most needed. Material is fed from portable mounting directly into the machines, thus avoiding unnecessary handling. Packages in the shipping department are rapidly handled by boys on roller skates. Even the plant library is on wheels, and in a traveling bookcase visits each department at regular intervals.

WHERE MONEY IS A NUISANCE

Americans have reason to be thankful for their simple and reliable money. The complications of the Chinese currency are endless. China possesses 72 different money values. As to the money of account, the Kaikuan Tael, familiar in connection with the customs, the Hankow, Kuantung, Esaoping, Tookwai and others, each differ by varying percentages of weight from the "liang," or Chinese ounce of silver. If a traveler from Shanghai were to make an extended tour into the interior, passing through the districts where a manifold variety of coins circulate, the constant exchange from one weight or coin to another would dissipate a very large part of his capital.

An experienced traveler has been known to take scales with him, and still his weights and the purity of his silver were subjected to dispute in different provinces. At coast ports, Mexican, Yuan, Dragon, Hong-Kong and Hankow dollars are all current, each having its own defined exchange value in the native market, while in the interior the added intricacies of dealing with cents and copper cash is so great that it is astonishing how trade can be carried on without disputes and a considerable loss to trade.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE PLEASING VOICE

AT NO period of our existence does the pleasing voice with its musical intonations and lucid articulations fail to win an audience and respect.

There is a compelling charm in its accent, its deliberative sweetness and enunciation which is well-nigh irresistible, whether it praises or condemns—a carrying, impressive quality which sways the hearers at will.

And yet with all the subtle power invested in the organs of speech, men and women in their oral intercourse with one another are habitually careless.

They have a few set words and phrases which go round and round their dial of conversation like the hands of the clock, incapable of doing anything else, or of stirring a single new pleasurable emotion.

Such voices narrow and dampen the spirit of expectant hearers until they wish they could go suddenly deaf or vanish in the air.

Whether the rasping discords come from the lips of vestals or scullions, the effect produced is always "creepy" and depressing to the refined.

And this would seem to show the importance of a pleasing voice at the fireside, the desk, behind the counter, everywhere, in fact where tired ears are pausing on tip-toe for a soothing sound to assuage their pent-up nervousness.

If you would succeed beyond the mediocre, you will find that it behooves you to cultivate the pleasing voice, not one that is marked by affection, but by sweet soul-strains attuned to discriminating and delicately adjusted ears accustomed to pure accent and undue emphasis.

Nothing is more destructive to a salesman's success than a loud, coarse and brazen enunciation, with a touch of authoritative command in every vowel and aspirate.

And this applies not only to the salesman but to every man and woman in all walks of life, and especially to those who are dependent on others for a livelihood.

The discriminating employer naturally gives preference to him or her who habitually uses a pleasing voice in company with a kindly smile and courteous manners, in all kinds of weather and in all sorts of business.

YOUR FRIEND YOURSELF

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

GOOD friends in life are life's most lovely thing;
Two things I wish you all along the way;
That you will have them, wintry day or spring,
But never need them, spring or wintry day.
Good friends are good, but happiest is he
Who, having friends, needs not to friends to turn—
Who never needs to ask for charity,
But has his food, his coat, his wood to burn.

Because, the older that we grow, we learn
That, after all, man needs a friend to be
To him himself—to save as well as earn,
In joy providing for adversity.
Good friends in life are life's most lovely thing;
But, friends to keep, remember here's the way;
They always have them, wintry day or spring,
Who never need them, spring or wintry day.

THE BABY'S PART

By FRANCES B. MITCHELL

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

"I SHALL have to ask you to hold baby until I can get some milk. Poor little angel, he is about starved."

"But I—I" Ann stammered—and then gazed helplessly at the squirming piece of humanity, so hastily and unceremoniously deposited on her lap. The woman had vanished. "Well"—Ann grasped for want of anything else to say, and Ann was seldom at a loss for words. "Rather abrupt, don't you think so?" Ann smiled sweetly at the man opposite, his forehead creased into two straight lines of annoyance. "Of all the confounded limits, she was the leader"—he growled. "If I only knew where she went or how she looked I would go after her and make her take the infernal"— "Don't call the poor little thing names, Dick! See, you have made him cry." Something surely had. The deserted infant was testing the capacity of an unusually vigorous pair of lungs. "Poor little tootsie—it's hungry, so it is, but its mover will be back in just a minute with some nice milk for the poor little starved fellow." Ann cooed softly and soothingly—deftly she turned the infant across her knees after the time immemorial method of pacifying young humanity. "Little chap is hungry—yes, he is." Ann's voice was full of deep, vibrant caresses. The long, straight lines faded from Richard's forehead—little, deep ones appeared around his mouth. He watched Ann from under half-closed lids—decidedly this was a new and altogether wonderful Ann.

"By jove, she is a wonder," he breathed under his breath. He was almost glad it had happened. "She's grit clear through," he murmured.

"Euchred!" he yelled, springing to his feet. "Ann! Ann! the train is moving, and"— "Hush, Dick, he's about asleep." "But the woman—the train is moving, I tell you."

The train was surely moving—how long it had been in motion, neither knew. Ann had been absorbed in her efforts to quiet the now sleeping baby, and Richard lost in admiration of Ann.

"Dick, what shall we do?" Ann spoke after a long silence spent in staring at the swiftly moving landscape.

"Pitch the thing out of the window"—the masculine element growled.

"Be serious, Dick—what shall we do?—it's only a few minutes until we reach Wentworth."

"Give it to some one else," Dick suggested brightly. "There is no one in the car to give it to." "Leave it on the seat, then."

"It would fall off." "Pin it on, then." "Dick, how can you be so heartless?" "Well, we can't take it off with us," he said doggedly. "Tom is going to meet us—we can't let him see it—confounded lubber—he sees a joke in everything—we would never hear the last of it. We will have to leave it on the train."

"Richard Manning, we won't leave the poor little thing on the train, by itself—it must be properly cared for by some one."

"That some one isn't going to be us. Its mother won't claim it. She's deserted it." "You know better, Richard." Ann, when displeased, had a very decisive way of saying Richard. Richard realized that it was time for him to do something practical; at the same time he must appease Ann. "Of course she will claim it," he agreed. "Rather out of the ordinary, isn't he?" "Certainly his mother will claim him, Richard." Ann was not easily appeased.

"By jove, the conductor is coming. We will leave it to him."

"Good boy, Dick." Dick smiled. Ann was appeased.

In a few words he explained their sudden and unexpected acquirement of the baby. "Describe the woman." The man of tickets spoke gruffly. "We can't, you see I was looking at Ann," Dick floundered helplessly. The conductor looked expectantly at Ann. Ann blushed. "I can't. I was—"

"Looking at this young man," the conductor supplemented grimly. "However, the mother of the child will probably wire to the next station."

"But we get off there—something must be done at once—" Dick spoke desperately.

"If that's the case, so much the better." The conductor spoke more affably—he saw all the responsibility vanishing from his shoulders. "Your wife can take charge of the baby, until its mother reaches there, on the train following this—it's only twenty minutes later."

"But she isn't my wife—yet, you see," Richard spoke desperately. "We are—er—we're going to be married there." He straightened his shoulders, as if he defied the entire world to try to stop that ceremony. "You see, Ann's father—" The conductor collapsed into the seat across the aisle and roared with laughter.

"So you are the eloping couple—you—are Major Deering's daughter?" he spoke to Ann, between paroxysms.

"There is an official searching through the train for you—he is in the next car." Richard moved over beside Ann; his face several shades paler. Ann forgot the sleeping baby and clutched Dick's coat sleeve. "Ann—" Richard gasped. "You will not tell." Ann looked at the conductor as if to measure her antagonist. The conductor looked soberly at Ann. "I suppose I will have to"—he said.

"But you must help us; papa wants me to marry a horrid old friend of his—and there's Richard—" she paused, as if the fact of Richard's existence made further explanation unnecessary.

"Papa's friend is rich, no doubt, and Richard is not, I suppose." The conductor spoke as if he were weighing Richard in the balance and Richard was found wanting.

"Richard has his law practice; he will make plenty for us—" Ann flared—then changed tactics. "Please help us," she said. No one resisted Ann when she said please. Ann's "Please" was a word of art—Ann realized it. Richard smiled; he knew the battle was won.

A smooth-faced individual came down the side. Ann and Richard braced themselves. Ann kept her eyes on the conductor in Ann's conquering way.

"You won't find your parties in this car, Jenkins." The conductor arose as he spoke. He turned to Ann. "That's a fine little chap—be sure you take good care of him," he said. Ann smiled her thanks. Ann's smile was dazzling.

"I suppose you are right, Flinch," Jenkins spoke undecidedly, but if it wasn't for the baby that couple certainly fit the description. Jenkins looked searchingly at Richard. "He is about twenty-five—tall—clean-shaven gray eyes—brown, curly hair. He counted each item off on his fingers. The description fitted Richard. It was Ann's turn—deep blue eyes—light, wavy hair—slender—medium height—brown dress—brown hat. That certainly fitted Ann. Ann bore the scrutiny and enumeration better than Richard; she was absorbed in watching the baby's sleepy efforts to get a pink, chubby hand in a mouth fully a size smaller than the hand.

"But the baby"—Jenkins swore softly under his breath. Ann's father had offered an alluring reward to the party who stopped the runaways. Jenkins was not romantic; his was a grasping nature. "Yes, the baby eliminates them;" Flinch spoke promptly and decidedly. He stood aside so that Jenkins could pass out first.

"You will reach your station in about ten minutes; I am sure you will find your message all right," he said pointedly to Richard.

"We sure will, but it will be all right anyway," Richard spoke promptly. Ann smiled at him approvingly. "Bless the baby," she said softly, as she gathered it up in her arms and kissed a tiny, dimpled hand.

"Same here," Richard echoed fervently. "Hang Tom and what Tom says."

IS IT WYCLIFFE?

THIS name, either spelled Wicliffe, Wycliff or Wycliffe, is from the name of a parish in the North Riding of Yorkshire, England. It was here that the famous reformer, John de Wycliffe, was born in 1324.

David Wickliffe was the first male white child born in the state of Maryland of Protestant parents. His father reached Maryland in the year 1638, where he died in 1642. He left a wife, Jane, who married a Mr. Brook, for a second husband. He left, also, a son David, who migrated to Virginia, where he married Mary Nicholas and made a contract to bring up her children by two former husbands, "so farre at schoole as to write and reade." These sons were Nathaniel Pope and Lewis Nochilas.

David had a brother Robert, who married Margaret, stepdaughter of Col. William Pierce, son of Capt. William Pierce of Virginia Council, whose daughter Jane was the third wife of John Rolfe.

Oliver Goldsmith was born in Ireland in 1728. His father, pastor of a small church, earned barely enough to support his little family, but succeeded in sending his son to Trinity college, Dublin. In 1749, shortly after his father's death, Goldsmith left college and prepared to enter the ministry. He was about to enter the clergy when the Bishop of Elphin, who was his examiner, refused to pass him—probably because of his knowledge of the youth's wildness.

Goldsmith now became tutor to a wealthy family, but soon lost this position through a dispute with the master of the house over a game of cards. Following this episode he was ready to sail for America when he changed his mind and allowed the boat to sail without him. His uncle came to his rescue and gave him 50 pounds, about $250, with which to go to Dublin and study law. He went to Dublin, but never studied law there as he lost the money his uncle had given him in gambling.

Despite his repeated imprudences, he was again rescued by his uncle and sent to Edinburgh to study medicine. Here he remained for 18 months and acquired some knowledge of medicine, but never took a degree. From there he went to Leyden, where he continued his studies at the expense of his uncle.

His best known works, "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "The Deserted Village" achieved instant popularity, and brought him a considerable return. He hesitated a long while before accepting his royalty of $500 for the "Deserted Village" for fear that the publisher would not make sufficient to cover his expenses! Goldsmith died in London, April 4, 1774, in debt more than $10,000 but the best loved literary man of his generation.—Wayne D. McMurray.

MERRITT—This name Merritt is from the parish of Merriott, in Somersetshire.

LUMLEY—This is an old Anglo-Saxon name. The family have lived in England in the county of Durham from the time of the Conquest. In 1603 King James I visited Lumley castle, and the bishop of Durham, talking to the king there, wanted to do honor to his friend Lord Lumley, so he gave a long account of the family. "Oh, mon," said the bored king, "gang no further. Let me digest what I have. I did na ken Adam was named Lumley!"

MEATLESS DINNERS

FOR those who must and those who wish to leave meat out of the diet, the following recipes and suggestions may prove helpful:

Vegetarian Main Dish.

Take equal parts of fresh green peas and sweet corn pressed from the kernels, chopped raisins, and dates mixed with honey and olive oil to moisten. Press into cups to mold and serve with a rich cream sauce made with cream, adding honey or maple sirup and nut meal made from the brazil nuts.

A nut roast may be prepared, using the coarsely chopped nuts in place of the meat, with the other ingredients of a veal loaf. Baste during the baking and serve with a highly seasoned tomato sauce.

In the same oven with the roast bake peeled potatoes with two onions sliced and six tablespoonfuls of any good oil, basting often during the baking. Add parsley well sprinkled over the vegetable and season well with salt and pepper.

Serve peeled potatoes with butter and chopped onion, just as one does parsley potatoes.

A tasty cream soup with fingers of toasted bread.

Head lettuce sprinkled generously with chopped peanuts and a little scraped onion, with French dressing.

Another dinner may begin with canteloupe, served in balls with a lemon sauce poured over the fruit. Serve in cocktail glasses.

For dessert any fruit pie with or without ice cream is sufficiently filling to satisfy an ordinary appetite. Blueberry pie with ice cream is an especially delicious combination.

Mock Sausages.

Soak one-half cupful of lima beans overnight in water to cover. Drain and soak in salted water until soft. Put through a puree strainer, add one-third of a cupful of dry bread crumbs, three tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of sage, one beaten egg and salt and pepper to season. Shape in the form of sausage, dip into beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with rings of fried apple, overlapping around the platter.

Bank President Met Burglar as Brother

The late Thomas W. Lawson used to tell a story in illustration of frenzied finance.

"Frenzied finance is crooked finance," he would begin. "Well, once upon a time a bank robber was interrupted in the midst of his delicate work by the sound of approaching footsteps.

"The bank robber put down his acetylene drill softly. He pressed his gloved hand—gloved to obviate fingerprints—to his thumping heart. Then the door opened and a beautiful old gentleman with white side whiskers, wearing a long black frock coat, appeared.

"'Who are you, sir?' said the old gentleman.

"'I'm Buster Bill, the safe cracker,' was the fierce reply, 'and if you don't want to be bored full of holes like a swiss cheese—'

"But the old gentleman gave a cry of joy. He advanced with outstretched hand.

"'Oh, sir,' he said, 'I am the president of this institution, and I was afraid you were an examiner or inspector or something. But you are only Buster Bill, a mere burglar, eh? Oh, thank heaven for that! I'm sure you and I, between us, will be able to come to an arrangement which will be more than satisfactory to our depositors.'

"The two men shook hands cordially. Then they went at the safe together."

World's Weirdest Trail

The Hawaiian National park, in the Hawaiian islands, contains one of the most unusual trails to be found in the national park system administered by the Department of the Interior. This is the two and one-half-mile Crater trail, popularly known as the "World's Weirdest Trail."

Its first half mile winds through luxuriant tropical vegetation. Then for a mile it takes its way through fantastic lava formations, the result of the overflow of Kilauea volcano in 1919, and the last mile is over the area bombarded by the huge boulders and fragments of lava formations, the result of the eruption, last May. The entire course of the trail is downhill from the starting point at Volcano house to the rim of the crater.—New York Times.

Safety Glass Perfected

A glass so strong that bullets from a shotgun cannot splinter it and yet so clear that it can be used for optical purposes, has been invented in England, and the demonstrations pronounced satisfactory. A glass so strong as to be unsplinterable has been manufactured for auto windshields for several years, but this is the first glass hard and clear enough to take the prescribed curves in grinding required for spectacles and other lenses. Its universal use will reduce the number of lost eyes and serious lacerations where spectacle-wearers are in crashes.

The Usual Answer

Dr. A. G. Sinclair, pastor of the famous Old First church of Bloomfield, N. Y., is receiving congratulations on the success of the Mothers' day exercises in his Bible school. He described touchingly to the children a painting. A cottage interior, a child dangerously ill, the father and the doctor hovering near, the mother seated at a table, her head in her arms.

"What do you think the mother was doing?" asked the minister.

"Cross-word puzzles!" a small girl promptly answered.—New York Times.

The Bright Side

"Excuse me, sir, but you do not seem to have very much business," said a tourist from the North whose car had developed a sad case of hypochondria upon which he had been working for nearly half a day.

"Well—p'tu!—no; not to say much," replied the proprietor of the crossroads store. "But if customers don't come along, just looky at the time I have to pitch horseshoes and talk dog-swap with fellers that don't want to buy nuth'n."—Kansas City Star.

Music Cure for Flowers

F. C. Billings of Milwaukee, Wis., says flowers will retain their original blooms many days longer if "treated" with good music. Certain rhythmic waves set up in the atmosphere by strains of music have a beneficial effect on flowers, he maintains, after some interesting experiments. The effect is similar to the reaction from light waves, he says.

STRAIGHT LINES CAPITULATE; THE LAST HATS OF SUMMER

WITH much unanimity master designers decided to attack the straightline silhouette this spring—going on the theory that we can have too much of even a very good thing. Although the attack comes from all quarters it was not a marked success in the ranks of street and sports clothes. So far from disappearing, the straightline vogue has not even grown less—not so that you can notice it, when throngs on the street, or promenades on athletic fields, pass in review.

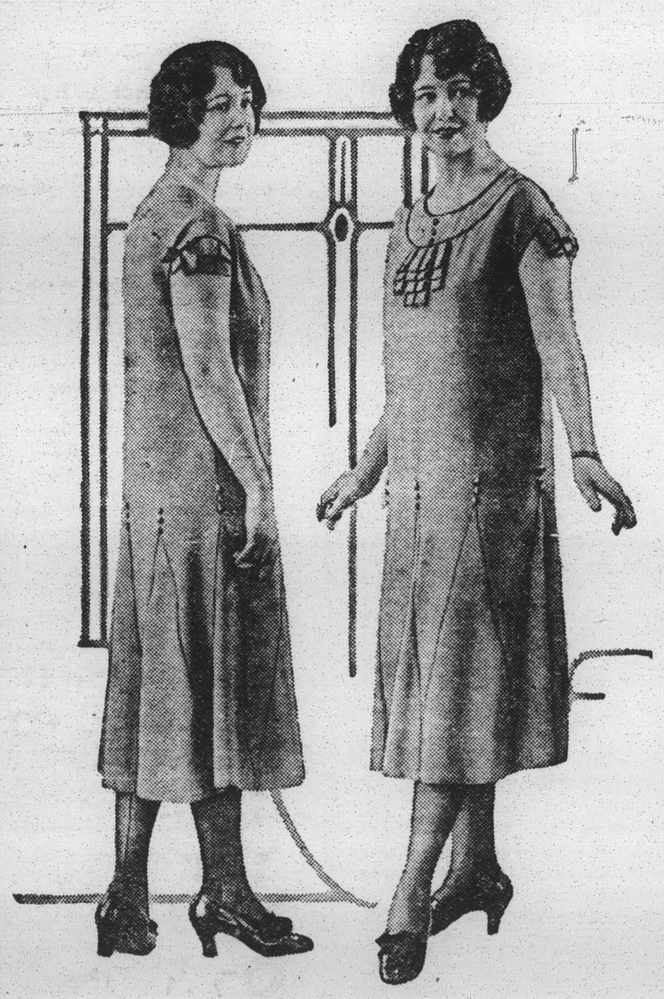
But among gay and light-minded afternoon frocks, there was much wavering—the attack has proved successful. In more or less informal afternoon gowns, women are inclined to run after strange gods and to encourage new ideas. The flared skirt, tiered dresses and tunic dresses all found themselves made welcome and all have appeared in many graceful versions. Even higher waistlines were occasionally entertained and the long sleeve succeeded in establishing a place for itself. Among these innovations, the most successful is the flared skirt. By fair means it has made itself a success that is going to last.

One of the most charming ways of introducing a flare in the straightline dress appears in the model shown here, where long godets join forces to overcome the severity of a plain crepe de chine frock. There is no sacrifice of the much-admired simplicity that fashion sponsors and there are also ingenious and original details of finish sure to win favor for this frock. They appear in groups of small crepe covered buttons posed at the point of each godet, in graduated loops made of folds of the crepe, used for finishing neck and short sleeves and in the narrow yoke.

Short, plaited skirts, set on to long bodices, circular flounces and tiers, and godets plaited at the top but loose at the bottom, are other means of insinuating fullness into afternoon and evening frocks.

Of certain kinds of hats it is not necessary to say anything—there are so many of them—they speak for themselves. The little felt hat, in pastel colors and white, for instance, is everywhere. It has been reinforced by similar hats of white kid and combinations of white and black in kid. Following immediately upon the heels of the kid hat came the hat of black patent leather, combined with white kid, in facings and decorations.

In dressier hats the wide-brimmed pastel-colored, hair-braid shapes have outdistanced all rivals for midsummer. To the lighter shades fashion has added rich purples in pansy and fuchsia tones. Many of these hair braids are flower trimmed, with blossoms in shades of the same color as the hats. Roses, with stems long and large, chrysanthemums and water lilies are in great demand for them, but there are many models trimmed with silk or velvet, with printed chiffon or applique figures of velvet.



Introducing the Flared Skirt.

Leaving these leading items out because every one is familiar with them, the group of hats pictured includes new developments of established styles—the last of the summer hats in which designers embody the season's most successful ideas. At the top of the group a hat of hair and straw braid stitched row on row reveals a crown trim of ribbon and flowers and a facing of light crepe. Below it a hair braid with drooping brim offers lines of gold thread run in the crown by way of variation, and trailing stems as well as roses, posed on the crown. Below it a small shape of straw braid is trimmed with a ribbon collar and veiled with printed chiffon. A novel and handsome fabric hat covered by rows of narrow braid is shown with a series of upward-turning points that form the brim and a flat rosette of small flowers and ribbon at the front. Stems play an important part in the daring trimming on the last hat in the group. If it were not for the cluster of roses at one side they might be taken for a small family of tiny snakes wriggling over the crown and brim.

CARPET BEETLE IS HOUSEHOLD PEST

Larvae Feed on Fabrics or Various Articles.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Carpet beetles, or so-called "buffalo moths," are common household pests usually associated in their destructive work with clothes moths. Ordinarily they are not so destructive as clothes moths, because they reproduce only once a year, and then not so abundantly.

Experienced housewives throughout the North are familiar with the stout, oval, reddish-brown hairy grubs or larvae of the common carpet beetle, found beneath carpets or in clothing. In southern homes, however, the longer, slender, golden-brown larvae of the black carpet beetle, with its tuft of golden bristles, is more common.

All carpet beetle larvae feed upon fabrics or upon various articles, including upholstered furniture, containing wool, silk, hair, fur bristles, or feathers. They even feed upon dried animal matter. Naphthalene flakes and paradichlorobenzene crystals are used to protect susceptible articles from carpet beetles in about the same way they are used for protection against clothes moths. That is, the garments, rugs, or other articles should be thoroughly cleaned, sunned, and brushed before being put away. They should then have either the naphthaline or the paradichlorobenzene scattered through the box or container in which they are to be stored, between folds and in various parts of the article. This box should then be tightly closed and wrapped with an extra protective covering of heavy wrapping paper. If the articles are to be stored in a trunk or chest the container should be tightly closed, as it is essential in all cases that the fumes given off by slow evaporation of the flakes or the crystals be closely confined. Either of these substances is effective against all stages of the beetles if properly used. The action of camphor is slower, but it may be used.

Insects Secrete Themselves in Upholstered Furniture.

Cedar chests will kill the very young larvae of carpet beetles, but they will not kill the beetles, the older larvae, or the pupae, nor will they prevent the eggs from hatching. Articles such as balls of yarn, floor skins backed with woolen cloth, pillows stuffed with hair or feathers, and similar objects in the interior of which the older carpet beetle larvae can hide, should not be placed in cedar chests until fumigated to kill the larvae hidden where they can not be reached by brushing.

Where infestation is general throughout a house or is serious in closets, it may be advisable to fumigate with hydrocyanic-acid gas, carbon disulphid, or sulphur, but none of these fumigation methods should be employed except by a person well informed regarding them. Laundering in thick suds or with water hotter than the hand can bear, or pressing with a hot iron, will probably kill the larvae and eggs of the carpet beetle in articles to which this treatment is adapted. The usual commercial dry-cleaning processes are probably effective in killing them.

FOOD PREPARATIONS AND THERMOMETERS

For Uniform Results in Cooking Be Exact.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The modern housekeeper has learned, among other things, that it is necessary to be exact in her cookery methods to secure uniform results. She must measure the ingredients of her cake in the same way every time she makes it, and she must regulate her oven temperature to the same point at each baking. Cookbooks intended to meet requirements no longer tell her to "bake in a moderate oven," leaving her to guess just what "moderate" may mean; they say, "bake at 300 degrees Fahrenheit," or "bake at 300 degrees to 400 degrees Fahrenheit, beginning low, and raising temperature gradually." If one is following up-to-date directions for making candy, for deep-fat frying, for roasting meat, or for any kind of baking, the recipe will undoubtedly mention the best temperature or range of temperatures for the process and materials being used.

Indispensable, therefore, to accurate cookery is a dependable thermometer. A single strong, well-made chemical thermometer can be made to answer for a number of these purposes if it gives readings up to about 500 degrees Fahrenheit. Separate thermometers are on the market for several special cooking processes, and may be found convenient in some cases.

The general-purpose thermometer can be adapted to oven use by thrusting it through a hole in the top of the oven and clipping it in place with a spring clothespin. Used in this way, it is most effective since it can be arranged so as to record the temperature of the center of the oven rather than the sides and can be read from outside the oven without opening the door.

A thermometer helps to roast meat with accuracy. If it is inserted into the piece to be cooked its reading indicates to the housekeeper when the meat at the center of the roast is "rare," "medium' or "well-done."

In sugar cookery—represented in the household in the making of candy, icings, sirups for canning, or sauces, a thermometer is practically essential. There is much uncertainty as to just when a sirup "spins a thread," "forms a soft ball," or "reaches the hard crack," and the cook is only successful as often as she makes a lucky guess. A thermometer which can be dipped directly into the hot sirup registers the exact temperature, and as sugar combinations are known to behave in certain ways when they reach different temperatures, all doubt is eliminated. A thermometer can also be used to test the temperature for deep-fat frying or for other cooking processes at temperatures above 212 degrees Fahrenheit, where accuracy and uniform results are important.

A thermometer is obviously required for pasteurizing milk at home—that is, raising the milk to a temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit, and holding it there for 30 minutes. The chemical thermometer is of such a size and shape that it will go into one of the bottles. Butter making and other processes often carried on in the farm home call for the use of a dairy thermometer, but the general-purpose thermometer will do.

In addition to all the ways in which thermometers help by telling how hot foods are, one must not forget the important role they may play in connection with keeping food cool. It is only by means of a thermometer that one can tell whether the refrigerator is efficient—i. e., maintaining a fairly steady temperature below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The thermometer shows beyond question where the coldest part of the icebox is, and in homes where ice is not always used, helps the housekeeper to locate some part of her cellar or outside porches where foods can be safely stored.

COTTAGE CHEESE CUTLETS ECONOMICAL

Appetizing Cottage Cheese Cutlets.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cottage cheese cutlets offer an economical and appetizing way to use up left-over cereals or even the uneaten quick breads. Where bread crumbs are called for in the recipe given below by the United States Department of Agriculture, they may be made from left-over corn or other hot breads. Mashed cold potatoes may be used in place of cereal. Dry corn meal or finely ground oatmeal may be used to stiffen the mixture instead of crumbs, but in that case it is better to form it into a loaf and bake it in the oven about twenty-five minutes. Other seasonings may be used.

1 cupful cottage cheese
1 cupful dry bread crumbs, or ½ cupful cold cooked rice, and ½ cupful bread crumbs
¼ cupful peanut butter, or 2 tablespoonfuls savory fat
¼ cupful coarsely chopped peanut meats
½ teaspoonful powdered sage
½ teaspoonful thyme
1 tablespoonful milk
1 teaspoonful salt
¼ teaspoonful pepper
½ teaspoonful soda
1 to 2 tablespoonfuls finely chopped onion

Cook the onion in the fat until tender but not brown. Dissolve the soda in the milk and work into the cheese. Mix all other dry ingredients thoroughly with the bread crumbs. Blend peanut butter and onion with the cheese, and mix the bread crumbs with them. Form into flat cakes, dust with bread crumbs or corn meal, and fry a delicate brown in a little fat in a hot frying pan.

Courtship Among Lower Creatures

Methods of love-making are just as varied among animals, birds, and insects as the methods used by human beings. According to a well-known scientist, the male spider, a diminutive creature compared with the female, attracts the attention of his mate by vibrating one of the fibers of her web, thus transmitting a message of love along the "wires."

The chirp of the cricket, caused by the male rubbing leg and wing together, appeals to his mate's sense of hearing, and was the first known example of instrumental music being applied to courtship. The frog also exploits the sense of hearing, the male emitting that very resonant sound so often apt to interfere with one's sleep. The croak of the frog was the first known instance of vocal music being applied to courtship.—Grit.

Ingenious Cat

An innocent-looking black cat, which is the pet of a Burlington (Vt.) store, was seen to leap up on the counter and get into the egg basket, says the Boston Globe. The cat proceeded to push one of the eggs out with its paws and when it broke on the floor, jumped down and ate the egg, leaving the shell. Then and there the store mystery of the broken eggshells on the floor was solved. And a short time after that, the cat excelled itself. A glass jar of chicken was in a basket, and craving a little solid food, the cat pushed the rather heavy jar off the counter. It went after the chicken and ate everything but the glass.

Flyers Set Record

Aviators in the Royal Canadian Air force set a new record for safe flying last year by making up 3,340 hours of actual flying time without a fatal accident in carrying air mail, patroling forests and fisheries, and performing other government service, said a report from the Department of the Interior. More than 3,000 acres of forest in Alberta were covered twice a day by air patrols during the season of fire hazard, and in Manitoba 40,000 acres were under observation. The forces photographed 40,000 square miles of terrain for the topographical survey.

Public-Spirited Citizen

An anonymous donor has given the sum of £40,000 ($200,000) to the Bradford (England) Chamber of Commerce the interest to be used to send selected young men to the continent for periods of six months or more to study languages, especially Russian and Spanish, and to learn some branch of the textile industry. The purpose is to enable these young men to assist Bradford to develop permanent trade relations with foreign countries.

State-Owned Coal Mines

All the fuel, with little exception, to be used during the coming year at charitable, educational and penal institutions of South Dakota will be from the state's own lignite mine near Haynes, S. D. The mine, operation of which by the state began in 1919, is now on a profit-paying basis and producing in such quantities that its manager was able to offer prices which enabled almost all the institutions to use the coal at a saving.

Electric Street Railways

With one exception all of the cities of the United States having a population of 25,000 or more have electric street railways. These electric street car lines represent a total investment of $5,625,000,000, which constitutes 2 per cent of the nation's wealth, and last year they provided transportation for a total of 16,000,000,000 people, which is equal to 140 rides for every inhabitant of the United States.

WHITE TICKETS HANDED TO AUTOISTS FOR WRONG PARKING

Over one hundred automobile drivers were caught in the police crusade at Mission Beach last week for parking on the wrong side of the street. In three days a total of 111 white tickets were placed by Motorcycle Patrolman Johnson in machines found parked against the law. Most of the owners were fined $5 each in police court, and bench warrants were issued for those who failed to appear. Only half a dozen or so escaped with suitable excuses and three were reprimanded along with suspension of fines, while a youth was turned over to the juvenile court.

"LOMA LORE"

By WINIFRED DAVIDSON

Point Loma, California

Book rights reserved.

For the purposes of record here are added the dimensions of the lighthouse as detailed in the same article referred to:

"The walls will be 20 feet high from the foundation and the entire building 20 feet wide by 38 feet long. There will be a cellar of six feet in the clear; the main building will be 9 feet 2 inches in the clear, and the attic 3½ feet. The 'tower' will be situated directly in the middle of the building and will be 10 feet in diameter, thus leaving on each side rooms 14 by 20 feet. A spiral staircase will lead through the tower to its height, which is to be 33 feet from its base; thus there will be an elevation of 433 feet from the level of the sea. A kitchen and other out offices are also to be erected of wood in the rear and when completed will form a useful ornament. Due provision is being made for light as well as ingress and egress. The lanterns and lenses are coming direct from Paris, whence they have been ordered, and will be of the very latest improvement."

THE LENS

The old "Spanish" lens was made in France. The item carries marks of the most famous funnyman of the west, "Squibob," "John Phoenix," that Lieutenant (afterward Captain) George H. Derby, who, out of the diversity of his gifts, would substitute upon emergency for Editor Ames during the latter's many mysterious visits to San Francisco; would make surveys and maps of San Diego county; would direct the turning of the wayward river; would caricature every man, woman and child of his acquaintance; would fight for the protection of his Indian shovelers; would successfully follow a dozen interesting lines of activity and come out invariably with a town full of approving grins.

Perhaps no other San Diegan, native or newcomer, understood so thoroughly as Lieutenant Derby the significance of the work preparatory to the erection of Point Loma light. Some of the Herald's dimensions and figures of other sorts in the foregoing item are not exact, but the important and most astonishing statement is a true one. The lantern and lenses did come directly from Paris for the Pacific coast lights erected in the fifties. The Point Loma light was a fixed white light: a Fresnel lens.

It was the Frenchman, Augustine Fresnel, beginning his work in 1822, who revolutionized lighthouse practice. He invented about that time a system of annular lenses, refractors and reflecting prisms, of glass. They surrounded a central lamp. A single lamp. Before that many lamps or candles were needed to give strength sufficient to throw enough light to make the lighthouse of any practical use whatever. Today various forms of lenses, but all designed on the Fresnel principle, are universally used in lighthouse work.

Alan Stevenson, one of those Stevensons with whose life-histories the history of lighthouse building is inextricably bound, wrote in this way of that new type of lens:

"Nothing can be more beautiful than an entire apparatus for a fixed light of the first order. It consists of a central belt of refractors, forming a hollow cylinder six feet in diameter and thirty inches high; below it are six triangular rings of glass, ranged in a cylindrical form, and above a crown of thirteen rings of glass, forming by their union a hollow cage, composed of polished glass, ten feet high and six feet in diameter. I know of no work of art more beautifully creditable to the boldness, ardor, intelligence and zeal of the artist."

It was not Spanish enterprise, but American and French, that made our first Point Loma light a work of art, "beautifully creditable to the boldness, ardor, intelligence and zeal of the artist." It is something for us to dream over: that old fixed white light on Point Loma, shining to the skies above the square-turned ripples off the headland, above the glistening, heaving kelp bed, above the sandy, low-lying peninsula that now we name North Island, then white and wan and unsubstantial.

Mrs. Martin Jeske of Bakersfield, Calif., is a guest of the Hunts on Ostend court this week.

Mrs. A. H. Winder of Riverside, with her two children, spent the past week at the "Esperanza Flats" on Ormond court. Mrs. Winder said it was 118 in the shade at home and it was such a relief and joy to be in Mission Beach, where it has been so delightfully cool.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hunt spent a week at Catalina Island, and although they had a wonderful time, they acclaim there is no beach like Mission Beach. They visited their son, Raymond Evans of Los Angeles, on their way home.

Mrs. J. A. Harris of Bayside walk entertained with a swimming party last week. A luncheon was served the hungry bathers and a good time was had by all. Those present were Mrs. Al Roberts, Mrs. Claude Woolman, Mrs. W. England, Mrs. Art Walton, Mrs. Ernest Walton, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. Harry Lowe, Mrs. Harry Schnell, Mrs. Neta Carson and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hunt entertained informally Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chester of Los Angeles, Dr. and Mrs. George Brace, Misses Martha Brace and Maxine and Dona Anderson. The guests played Monte Carlo, after which light refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Brennan of Los Angeles were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Smith at 803 Ormong court, Mission Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Griggs and their daughter, Dolores, were weekend guests from San Diego at the home of Mrs. C. T. Schulz in Mission Beach. Their visit was made especially happy with the celebration of Miss Griggs' fifteenth birthday, the occasion being joyfully marked by a chicken dinner and swimming party. Misses Katherine and Nora Hinman and Georgia Leluke were among the invited guests.

REPUTATION IS REPTITION

Persistent advertising is a reputation builder for any business man.

Keeping your name steadily before people impels them to think of your business.

A FEW DON'TS FOR BATHERS

Don't go into the water immediately after eating.

Don't go into the water when overheated.

Don't go beyond your depth.

Don't take any unnecessary chances.
